"THE BURNING TREE."

A Native of India Whose Touch Is Dreaded by the Natives.

There has lately been added to the col-lection of plants at the botanic gardens at Madras, India, a specimen of a strange tree, writes an East Indian correspondent to London. It is in size scarcely more than a bush, but other individuals of its s are known to have attained, in habitat in the Himalayas, Burma, and the Malacca peninsula, the dimen-sions of a large tree from 50 to 75 feet in height. The Madras specimen is surrounded by a strong railing, which bears the sign, "Dangerous; all persons are forbid-den to touch the leaves or branches of this

It is therefore a forbidden tree in the midst of the garden, but no one is tempted to touch it, for it's known to be a "burning tree." This name is a misnomer, for the tree stings rather than burns. Beneath the leaves there are stings com-parable to those of nettles, which, when touched, pierce the skin and secrete a fluid which certainly has a burning effect.

The string leaves no outward sign, but the sensation of pain persists sometimes for months and is especially keen on damp days or when the place which has been wounded is plunged in water. The natives in the part of Burma where this tree grows are in such terror of it that they fly in haste when they perceive the peculiar odor which it exhales. If they peculiar odor which it exhibes. If they happen to touch it, they fall on the ground and roll over and over on the earth with shrieks. Dogs touched by it yelp and run, biting and tearing the part of their bodies which has been touched.

A horse which had come in contact with a "burning tree" ran like a mad thing, biting everything and everybody that it could reach. A missionary at Mandalay who investigated a leaf of the plant with his forefinger suffered agony for several weeks, and for ten months felt occasional darting pains in his finger.—New York Mail and Express.

A Wonderful Telescope.

The wonderful penetrative power and scope of the Edgecomb binocular telescope are rendering rare and valuable aid to research in that line, the two object glasses in this latest construction being pronounced so perfect in quality and likeness that the eminent maker himself, Alvan Clark, declares his inability to discover the least defect or difference between them. These glasses are of 6.5-16 inches aperture and 94 inches focus, and in this latter element they do not differ by one one-hundredth of an inch. So perfect is the parallelism secured and maintained that they are considered unrivaled by any other object glasses in the world. Prismatic eyeploces bring the pencils of light traversing the two great tubes to within the proper distance apart to be received by the eyes, and the eminent maker himself, Alvan Clark, tance apart to be received by the eyes, and by the same means the image of the object viewed is presented in the natural or "right side up" position, the instrument being thus suited equally for terrestrial and celestial uses. Each eye, by this arrange ment, receives an image formed by a 6½ inch telescope of perfect defining power. In practice a minute spot of light 250 feet distant is exhibited by the reflector, clear and bright, with every detail of its dial perfectly defined, as in a gold watch.-New York Sun.

Most Violent of Civilized Countries

A homicide occurs every two hours in Italy. This was one of the many startling statements made by Baron Garo falo, a distinguished Italian criminologist, in a lecture delivered on "Criminality in Relation to the Education of the People" in the Roman college. His audience included Queen Margherita.

In Italy the annual loss of life by homicide (usually by lethal weapons) numbers about 4,000 souls. Compared with France, for instance, she has 10 homicides a year for France's 1, and 35 for Denmark's 1. The Latin populations, indeed, in both hemispheres have a bad pre-eminence over the Tentonic in crime generally, and of these Latin populations the Italian is the Baron Garofalo proceeded to give the reasons why. In the first place, vendetta, which in Greece was heroism and in mediæval Europe a laudable custom, has lingered longer in Italy than in any other country; dueling, also, is more frequent in Italy than elsewhere. To the religious instruction given in Great Britain and the United States of America he attributed the fact that these countries have in 40 years diminished by one-half the annual proportion of their delinquents and mendicants, while in Italy the want of similar instruction has resulted in the positive increase of delinquency and mendicancy since 1862. When to these considerations we add the increased hardness of living in the young kingdom, the strain put upon the moral resisting power by a crushing poverty, to the city occasionally to work up the squalid dwellings, the defective alimentation, by which the brain is starved, when it is not actually poisoned, by the stimulants in which relief from misery is sought, and the depreciation of life as it exists under such conditions, we ar rive at an ensemble of causes which quite accounts for these sad statistics.

The Blind Slave Girls of Canton.

Passing down the streets of Canton at night, my attention was called to numbers of blind girls from 14 to 18 years of age dressed in brilliant outer garments, with their faces rouged and their hair ornamented with flowers. A woman, carrying a musical instrument. led several of these girls, and I have since learned that they were owned by this mistress, who conducted them, by night, to the lowest parts of the city, and by their playing, singing, and in most disreputable ways, she secures an income through them that enables her to live in ease and comfort. I have met no class of persons that seemed so pitiable as these blind singing girls. It is regarded an affliction for a girl to be born in a Chinese family, and when the girl is blind, her life is one of ceaseless neglect and cruelty, and often, if the family is poor, she is sold for a small amount to one of these dealers in human bodies, who plies her nefarious business until death snatches her victim from her. -Baltimore Snn.

MANY ODD REMEDIES.

MAN OIL, ANT SPIRITS AND OTHER CURIOUS THINGS USED.

Who Use Them Firmly Believe In Their Virtues-Drug Clerks Supply the Demand by Giving Harmless Substitutes and Charging Fancy Prices.

"Aye want dees filled wit' man oil." With this the speaker, a rawboned, stolid looking Swede, handed a dirty. two onnce vial across the counter of a Division street drug store to the clerk. Without saying a word or moving a muscle to indicate astonishment at this singular request the clerk took the vial and disappeared behind the prescription case. In a moment he reappeared, and, handing the vial back, remarked in an indifferent tone:

"Ninety cents." Being asked to tell something about the traffic in the fat of human beings the clerk grinned.

'I gave the fellow two ounces of simple cerate and charged a fancy price to impress him with the genuineness of the 'man fat,'' said he. "I see no harm in the deception. The fellow has unbounded faith in the virtues of man oil, and he wouldn't be happy until he believed he had some. If I didn't sell him some, he would find a druggist who would. The simple cerate will do him just as much good as man oil. We often have calls for remedies as absurd as this. We always fill them-out of the simple cerate bottle if it be an oil, or some other harm-less drug if it be something else."

Investigation disclosed the fact that the various portions of the city have their peculiarities in beliefs as to the efficacy of various unusual remedies. Swedish settlements man oil is believed to have marvelous virtues in aches and pains when applied externally. Over in the stockyards region and in the southwest portion of the city dog's grease is held in high repute as a specific for consumption. The men in charge at the dog pound declare a great many of the dogs that come to an untimely end in the death chamber there are converted into a superior article of cod liver oil for the use of consumptives. They declare that a number of "doctors" regularly visit the pound and select nice, fat dogs, which are slaughtered by the attendants, to be rendered into oil for the alleged physicians' patients. Not only this, but the patients themselves often send relatives or friends to the pound to get dogs for this purpose. Usually the attendants kill and dress the dogs, receiving a small fee for their trouble. Sometimes the dogs are taken away to be killed. One dealer said he usually got from half a gallon to a gallon of oil from a dog; that the grease resembled lard oil in ap-pearance; that the oil had no disagreeable odor if the dog was young; that the dose was a tablespoonful three times An interesting feature brought out was that after a person had once used dog's grease other remedies would have no effect whatever on him.

Out on Milwaukee avenue rainworm oil and ant spirits are held in high re pute. The druggists have frequent calls for these remedies and they always fill the prescriptions, the former out of the olive oil bottle and the latter with alcohol slightly colored. The Germans believe both remedies are valuable for external use for all sorts of aches and pains, including rheumatism. The ant spirits are also taken internally. In a standard German pharmacopæia, Dr. H. Hager,in the edition for 1876, gives a formula for making the ant spirits. The directions given are to take ten parts of ants to two parts of alcohol. The ingredients are to be rubbed in a mortar and left to stand for two days. The resulting colorless liquid is then ready for use for rheuma-tism, paralysis and the like.

Snake oil is regularly quoted in some drug price lists. A man named Schuh at Cairo, Ills., is engaged in its manufacture. John Jones of Phenix, A. T., devotes his entire time to the manufac of rattlesnake oil, for which he gets $4 a pound, the purchaser to pay express charges. Snake oil is reputed to be valuable for rheumatism. He comes Skunk oil is in considerable demand, also for rheumatism. The skunk oil is obtained from the skunk farms, where the animals are bred for their skins. Belief in these remedies is often found among American born people.

"When a girl comes in after 'love powders,' " said a drug clerk on North State street who often has occasion to fill such orders, "I give her a little sugar of milk, which is absolutely innocu ons, if she wants it for herself, and tell her to take two doses a day. If she wants it for her 'fellow,' she usually asks for the magic drug in the shape of candy. In that case I give her some worm lozenges. The drugs must give satisfaction, for the orders are fre-quently refilled."—Chicago Tribune.

Genesis of Cotton In America.

The first planting of cotton seed in the colonies was in the Carolinas in the year 1621, when seeds were planted as an experiment in a garden. Winthrop says that in 1643 "men fell to the manufacture of cotton, whereof we have great stores from Barbados." In 1736 it was cultivated in the gardens along Chesapeake bay, especially in the vicinity of Baltimore, and at the opening of the Revolution it was a garden plant in New Jersey and New York, but its real value seems to have been almost unknown to the planters up to about 110 years ago.—St. Lonis Republic.
